Terminological systems related to the existence of what is relevant, the specific features of sport as a social phenomenon, and activities as a specific field of the professional. According to experts, “Any terminological system can be evaluated in terms of both content, ie. it is a reflection of the modern level of a particular science or practice and the positions of the logical harmony of the construction of the system, as well as its linguistic design. Due to the lack of distribution of nominations is carried out regularly not only for extralinguistic reasons, but also in fact linguistic. collected, then professional jargon, phraseological units, paraphrases, jargons, and metaphors. Modern sports language includes a variety of terms, professionalism and jargon used by athletes, sports media and simply sports fans.

3. DISCUSSION

Each sport has its own set of terminology, professional vocabulary, a set of slang words and phrases. Terminological nominations Phraseologisms have a minimal idea. Term compounds occur in the sports field must meet all established requirements. Here you can register: the accuracy of the value, the appearance of the system, brevity and linguistics. Sports terminology is based on figurative meaning or metaphor. You can, for example, read the term readings that are part of it, the figurative verb and the word form associated with it: go ahead, update records, equalize the score, give up service, give up the game, save the cup, take its place, strengthen the leader, hit the goal, and so on. Thermal compounds represent a separate group of terms with a deleted image semantics that includes metaphorical definitions. The words and phrases of a professional nature appeared on the basis of various hyphens: sticky defense, dry count, dry draw, new driving technique, strong play style, complex rally, glitter. All of these term combinations are highly specialized. The figurative metaphor in them is off because of its frequent use, and the regular repetition within it is a sports field. But with professionalism and jargon we can’t define them. Unlike jargon, sports language terms are very precise, excluding two-dimensional interpretation, are formed according to literary language norms, and are reproduced regularly. The sports dictionary is often supplemented with new external devices used in the literature, and sports journalism (see closed doors, ruthless sniper, etc.). For example, in the language of sports media, you might mention the following phrase: Fans playing with an orange ball is a real celebration. In the secret sports game basketball, "Game ball with orange under" is almost always played with orange ball. In the language of sports reporting, a paraphrase is used to avoid lexical repetition and also performs a game function. In addition, in many sports, slang phrases form a large part of the lexical fund. Jargon is used as a means of sporting expression in both the production environment and the relevant environment of general interest. This means of expression is used not only by amateur athletes who love sports in their spare time, but also by fans, fans, and professional athletes themselves, where the sport is a profession. A good example of how difficult it is to draw a line in a sports dictionary is between people’s activities related to hobbies and professional activities. Sports jargon is used and even disseminated by sports media (orally and in writing, in the press, popular magazines, radio and television in order to increase the authenticity and relevance of the message). Jargons are often used in comments and reports.

4. CONCLUSION

Jargon in sports journalism is a means of actualization, the frequent use of which leads to the unification of these expressions in the speech of a wide range of people. It should also be noted that from sports dictionary jargon is sometimes absorbed. In other areas of use (see referee, finish, etc.), Jargons for some modern sports, for example: (snowboarders, cyclists) enter everyday life and the main images are rooted in the language of youth (see helmet - "germak, pot, helmet"; motorcycle - "motas, motich, scooter, moto "; bicycle - "Mercedes pedal, bicycle race ", loss - " steering wheel ", biceps, arm - " bank "). A separate part of the sport terminology is the conditions under which the referee controls the race. The peculiarity of these characters is that they do not represent special concepts, but require voice commands to a specific action. Similar terms are found in a quick place to intervene and respond quickly. Competitive management conditions are typical for sports that pose a health risk to athletes: for example, martial arts, boxing, sambo, powerlifting, and more. So in boxing, the referee says "boxing!" Uses terms. ("the referee who ensures the beginning of the active combat action of the boxers in the team duel"), "out!" ("" The referee's final order, after which the boxer is awarded a victory
