Abstract: In this article discussed about is it a social need to engage young mothers in sciences and given some important information about this.

Keywords: science, social, knowledge, society, nation, responsible, skills.

Introduction

The potential and development of society is measured by its attitude to science. Which is, if the thirst for knowledge subsides in the society, if the attention to the study of science decreases, that society lags behind the development and faces a spiritual crisis.

Scientists, intellectuals, and parents of every society are responsible for ensuring that the spiritual world of the nation is not impoverished, morals are not corrupted, and false and destructive beliefs and cultures are not affected.

The work done by our state to increase the knowledge and skills of women, to further strengthen their position and influence in society and family is not in vain.

Literature review

The Decree of the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Sh.M. Mirziyoev "On measures to improve the system of working with families and women, supporting the neighborhood and religious people" and "Measures to further accelerate work on the systematic support of families and women" on" Decree No. PF-87 dated March 7, 2022 defines systematic tasks.

A number of benefits have been created for women to study in higher education institutions. Additional quotas have been established. There is a wide range of work being done in the field of career guidance. It is true that behind a great person is a great mother. Regardless of the field of science, along with the good teachers of the scientists who have grown up in this field, they get their roots of education from their mothers. Mother's role in raising a child is incomparable.

Mother! What a beautiful word! No matter what language it's in, you feel kindness and love. It seems that the best definition in the world is not enough? Every family has a peaceful and stable harmony, their children are healthy and moral, and the creation of a healthy family environment is the responsibility of mothers in every way. This is a woman, that is, a dear mother, who fulfills such a responsible and honorable task wholeheartedly, without complaining, and who helps her loved ones.

Thomas Edison, the inventor of the electric lamp, came home from school holding a letter from his teacher to his mother and said, "Our teacher gave it to you." As the mother read the letter, tears flowed from her eyes. Embarrassed by this, young Thomas became worried and asked why he was crying. His mother kindly replied: “You have a strong ability. Listen: “Your son is very... talented, the school misses him and his abilities. Therefore, let your son be educated at home!". Thus, Edison began to receive education from his mother at home. Years have passed since then. He invented the light bulb. His mother died in time. After his mother's death, the scientist found a letter on the shelf where his mother's belongings were kept. Although many years passed, he immediately recognized the letter. This was a letter written by his teacher at school. Edison, who was lost in history for a moment, began to read the letter with his own eyes. It read: “Your son is a very stupid and incompetent child. Don't come to school from tomorrow!” Edison could not stop crying for a long time. Then he wrote the following words in his memoirs: "Edison was really a short-sighted child, but because of his mother's beautiful upbringing, he became a gifted person."

But what is our situation now? Do we have mothers who produce scholars like Al-Bukhari, At-Tirmidhi, Abu Rayhan Beruni, Abu Ali Ibn Sina? If not, why? What should we follow in mother education? Where are we making mistakes? There are many questions. Answering these questions and finding solutions should be the problem of all of us.

Discussion

At this point, I found it necessary to quote the words of our great compatriot Abdulla Avlani about education: "Now it is clear that education should start from the day of birth, to strengthen our body, enlighten our mind, beautify our morals, and clarify our mind. Who does education? Where is it done? the question arises. To this question, "first home education. This is a mother's duty. Second, school and madrasa education. This is the duty of the father, teacher, tutor and the government," and one person said, "Which mothers do you mean, the ones who are uneducated, the ones with the head and the hands are the ones who knit? They bring the education that they don't have properly," he says. Here, this word crushes a person's heart and burns his heart. What do you say to his father, which father? Are you talking about those fathers who do not know the value of knowledge, who do not pay a single penny for knowledge, who are ignorant of the times? First of all, it is necessary to educate and educate them", he says. After hearing this word, the hands of hope will hit the armpits.

These rare words have not lost their relevance even now. In raising a child, first of all, mothers should be educated and knowledgeable, for this every parent should try from a young age.

Raising a child is hard work. Heavy load. Strong responsibility. Savings... Unlimited happiness. But education is often done simply. Involuntarily. As far as you know. Based on the conclusions he made from what he saw. The result is the same: sometimes positive, sometimes negative.

Worst of all, the result of education is not visible for many years. Although it appears, the child's sweetness remains in the shadow. It is accepted as a child's simple joy. In fact, the foundation of what a person will do as an adult is laid in childhood.

Our values embody universal qualities. It is necessary to teach and instill it in young souls from childhood.

Today's education is an investment in the future. She will definitely come back. Mother's high academic level creates ample conditions for her to think about every issue. Knowledge helps a person in the formation of a great blessing called foresight. Everyone likes a shrewd woman, a shrewd person in general. The weakness of a woman's worldview is noticeable in the upbringing of children, because of her inability to talk with children enough, and her inability to see them as individuals.

The role of the family, especially the mother, is important in this. Because the mother spends most of her time in the family, it means that her children grow up under her supervision. Families in which the father's place is highlighted and his presence is expressed are peaceful and free from problems. A profession chosen in consultation between father, mother, and child is useful, fruitful, and vital. It will be useful if these issues are seriously analyzed at school, if the textbooks are purposefully prepared, if they are filled with world news and successes.
In most cases, as a result of young mothers' lack of education, they go abroad to work to provide for their future, neglect their children's upbringing, and due to the fact that they do not have strict control over the cartoons and feature films that children watch, their ideas and ideology can be distracted.

It is especially common for young mothers to talk to their children in the language of children in their early years. For example: "nanna" instead of bread, "papa" for heat, and "baba" for sheep. As a result, the child relearns a word at the age of one or two years as "hot" at the age of three or four. This confuses the child. Such cases are called "pedagogical neglect in the family".

Women should also be involved in learning science. After all, half of the society is made up of women. Leaving them uneducated means leaving society uneducated. One of the solutions to the existing problems is to educate women. Because the education of the future generation depends on how enlightened women are. If they are educated, the next generation will be educated. If they are polite, the next generation will be polite too.

Unfortunately, today, most of our mothers' activities are clothes, talking, cooking, waiting for guests, watching TV series, they can't go beyond reading newspapers full of interesting topics. Husbands should take responsibility for this situation.

One of the most simple truths of today is that most young mothers are distracted from learning and get involved in petty problems due to the fact that mothers are only busy with household chores. In fact, the knowledge of the mother is the reason for the knowledge and potential of the community. In most families, our growing girls are also taught to earn a living. This is a good situation. However, special attention should be paid to developing their scientific level and outlook. Our men, who are the pillars of the family, should pay special attention to this issue.

By increasing their scientific level, they not only find answers to the problems related to raising children, but also exchange ideas with people of different categories and live in sync with the times. In the future, growing children will also be involved in various educational courses.

If mothers look at child rearing as the last task, and if they leave it to others and show irresponsibility, our nation is going to suffer cruel pain. No teacher can correct a child unless he receives education from his mother.

For this, first of all, it is necessary to pay a lot of attention to the education, education, and occupation of our daughters in preparation for motherhood. The whole system should be equally responsible for preparing them for life. If it is possible to involve the whole society, there will be no need for a special office dealing with women's issues.

Conclusion

Young mothers, whether they work tomorrow or not, if they have a higher education, do not speak rudely, carry their mother-in-law in one hand and their husband in the other, become charming and wise mistresses of a beautiful family, skilled diplomats in mutual relations. Everyone understands that these aspects are extremely important in family stability.

It is a social necessity to be educated, to understand oneself and one's identity, to be good at raising children and making a living. Only then will they be able to raise generations worthy of their great ancestors. they achieve the bliss of both worlds.
