

The Role of National Values in the Family in Child Education

O.A.Sharipova *

Kokand State Pedagogical Institute

Kokand, Uzbekistan

e-mail: economykspi@gmail.com

-----***-----

ABSTRACT

The article discusses the role of the family and national values in the upbringing of children. Thoughts on the example of parents in the upbringing of children, the positive impact of a healthy lifestyle in the family are also shown. The importance of national values in the upbringing of children is also highlighted in detail. Every parent in an Uzbek family should feel from the heart that a child needs to develop humanism, love for the Motherland, faith, responsibility, devotion to our sacred traditions, passion for science, cultural skills. Therefore, the main school of child rearing is the relationship between a couple and a parent. Raising a child is one of the most important issues for parents.

Keywords: education, upbringing, family, healthy lifestyle, behavioral culture, national values, parental example, national value.

Being a part of the family-society, being a precious gem, it is the hearth of the first upbringing. It is known that a person's destiny, successes or failures in the future, happiness or unhappiness, career choice and even mood, depends on his family environment. At the same time, the influence of parents on the upbringing of children is also important. Special attention should be paid to the issue of marital relations in the family, because "a man is the head of the family, and a woman is a good and worthy companion of a man. She is a good heir and helper in raising a child. As long as a child receives his first upbringing from the family, it should start from infancy. According to Abdullah Avloni, "Education is for us a matter of life or death, salvation or destruction, happiness or disaster." If the parents are the main educators in this educational institution, the children and grandchildren are the foster children. Therefore, in many respects, the main educators are how a child is brought up as a person, how he develops as a person, that is, it depends on the parents. A parental example is a visual lesson for children.

Parents should respect each other in front of the children, be warm to each other, and not raise their voices or quarrel in front of the children. Because such interactions also have a negative effect on the child's psyche, because during this period the child can distinguish any relationship from the tone of voice. In some cases, excessive caressing of children, unconditional fulfillment of all their wishes, just loving the child does not lead to good results. Doing so leads to the formation in the child of such aspects as ambition, inability to see one's own mistakes, and selfishness. It is important that our children do not look at people with suspicion in the future and we never lie to them. Knowing the mistake of lying and lying to them has a negative effect on his inner feelings, and the child gradually develops distrust of parents, disrespect for them, because for a child, a parent is always ideal. Therefore, the upbringing of a child should be done by deeds, not words.

Every parent in an Uzbek family should feel from the heart that a child needs to develop humanism, love for the Motherland, faith, responsibility, devotion to our sacred traditions, passion for science, cultural skills. Therefore, the main school of child rearing is the relationship between a couple and a parent. Raising a child is one of the most important issues for parents. The family and its sacred traditions, which have been preserved for centuries, are also an important factor in the upbringing of children.

According to Abdurauf Fitrat, "in order to bring up a child to full maturity, it is important to give him a multifaceted upbringing, consisting of mental and spiritual upbringing." [1]. and has a profound effect on emotions. Non-discrimination of children's rights is also required in the process of child rearing. It is also stated in the hadiths, "Respect your children and treat them with good manners." [2]

In Uzbek families, the role of the father in the upbringing of children is emphasized, especially in the upbringing of boys. The role of the mother in the upbringing of girls is invaluable. It is important for a mother to teach her daughter all the ups and downs of marriage, and even to explain the secrets of family and marriage to our sons and daughters in a unique way. Parents should provide their daughters and sons with adequate knowledge about family relationships in a timely manner.

The Avesto doctrine, which provides information about the early periods of our historical culture, also considers the family environment as one of the main factors in the development of society. In Uzbek families, the issue of loving parents also has a special place. The growth of children in the family depends on the parents and their love. If the child in the family is uneducated, only the parent is responsible for it. From the first days of our independence, the upbringing of a harmoniously developed, healthy generation has become a top priority of our state. On child rearing, President Sh.M.Mirziyoev said at a meeting in Tashkent region: "Governors will now be engaged in education and spirituality." It is obvious that as long as the governor, that is, the leader, is the patron of spirituality and spiritual life in his territory, there will be radical changes in this area. True, child rearing has played an important role in every age. This means that the governor is a person who is mature in all respects, far-sighted, compassionate and just, as well as responsible for the upbringing of the people.

It is well known that where the focus on child rearing is strong, crime offense will end. On the contrary, spirituality is in crisis. The wisdom of the country's leader, who has repeatedly said, "take care of your own child," places a special responsibility on parents. Raising children is everyone's business. It is not for nothing that such phrases as "Seven neighborhoods for one child, both father and mother", "Do not destroy your child with your own hands", "Be responsible for the upbringing of your child, be careful" have been formed.

Only an educated person will be able to make a positive impact on others. So it is a matter of discipline and responsibility. The issue of responsibility is also a major issue in the family. Responsibility is to do the work assigned to a person on time, to the end.

Whom do today's youth follow, who do they want to be like? The answer to this question is only in the family. It is no secret that a child learns all the habits from his parents. When adults are responsible, this quality is passed on to children. That is why responsibility must be inculcated in the minds and consciousness of children from the earliest stages of upbringing. Discipline and responsibility must be shared, harmonious, and complementary. Discipline shapes responsibility. Therefore, order must become a habit, and habit a direct obligation. In the family, it is our duty to pay attention to morality and education. How important family is to us. People in the neighborhood, especially the elderly, have never passed by a child carelessly on the street. On the contrary, they were immediately reprimanded and put on the right path. The family environment becomes stable as parents feel a sense of responsibility. There is a saying among our people, "He does what he sees in the bird's nest." Parents who raise their children should be an example to their children in every action, behavior, and behavior, because the child is by nature very imitative and observant. That is why those around him sometimes influence them with their habits without even realizing it. Rough relationships in the family, a lot of lying, unpleasant behavior have a negative impact on the upbringing of the child. That is why the attitude of parents plays an important role in the upbringing of children. Raising a child is very complex and responsible.

References:

1. A.Abdug'ofurov. Zokirjon Furqat.- T.: fan 1977
2. Imam al-Bukhari Collection of Hadiths Volumes 1-4.-T .: 1990-1995
3. About Mahkamov T.Avesto - T .: Sharq, 2000